

On Parker Pond, Mount Vernon, Maine

A Natural History Week at Bearnstow June 16–21 and July 1, 2019

Lecture Presentations and Nature Walks by Visiting Naturalists

Evening Lectures (7:30 p.m. at the Mount Vernon Community Center)

Morning Nature Walks (10:30 a.m. at Bearnstow)

Admission is free. Contributions are gratefully accepted.

Sunday, June 16, 7:30 p.m., Mount Vernon Community Center

Monday, June 17, 10:30 a.m., Bearnstow on Parker Pond

Nicole Rogers, Assistant Professor of Forestry, University of Maine, Fort Kent

“Maine Forests: Past, Present and Future”

Monday, June 17, 7:30 p.m., Mount Vernon Community Center

Mike Retelle, Professor of Geology, Bates College

“Long term Climate History Archived in the Sediment Record of Basin Pond, Fayette, Maine”

Tuesday, June 18, 7:30 p.m., Mount Vernon Community Center

Wednesday, June 19, 10:30 a.m., Bearnstow on Parker Pond

Ted Elliman, Plant Ecologist, New England Wild Flower Society, Framingham, MA

“Exploring the Flora of Central Maine Forest Communities”

Wednesday, June 19, 7:30 p.m., Mount Vernon Community Center

Thursday, June 20, 10:30 a.m., Bearnstow on Parker Pond

Eric Jones, Assistant Professor of Plant Biology, University of Maine, Machias

“Digitizing Natural History”

Thursday, June 20, 7:30 p.m., Mount Vernon Community Center

Morten Moesswilde, Acting Field Team Leader and District Forester, Maine Forest Service

“Woodland Stewardship: Principles and Practices”

Monday, July 1, 10:30 a.m., Bearnstow on Parker Pond

Alene Onion, Invertebrate Biologist, New York State Department of Environmental Conservation

“Parker Pond’s Animals Without Backbones—A Program for Children and Adults”

See also www.bearnstow.org/natureweek.htm